

RATEPAYERS MEETING ENDORSES TRUSTEES PROPOSAL FOR NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

Chairman Reid Submits Clear-Cut Report and Explains Method of Financing Cost.

Ratepayers of Coleman school district met in the council chamber on Friday evening to hear details of the proposal of the trustees to erect a new school building to take the place of the cottage schools at present housing junior grades, and gave their unanimous endorsement after hearing a carefully prepared report submitted by Mr. Arthur Reid, chairman of the trustees. It will cost $30,000, according to plans and estimates submitted by J. S. D'Appolonia, general manager of Excel Builders Supply Co.

The building, which will have a frontage of 75 feet on Second Street, will have four classrooms on the ground floor, two on the second floor and an auditorium which if later required can be turned into class rooms. It will be of brick veneer construction, with artificial stone trimmings, and a vacuum system of heating. The plant in Central school has sufficient capacity to heat the new building.

Mr. Reid pointed out the reasons of the trustees for submitting the proposal for ratepayers' consideration. The cottage schools were in the first place used as temporary schools, and added to the expense of operation, if they were retained, there would have to be a considerable amount spent in repairs and maintenance. In addition the board is paying rent of $300 annually for one class room.

To meet the cost, approximately $20,000 of the board's surplus would be used, and $10,000 met by private loan. He did not anticipate an increase in taxes for two years, and even if it did become necessary, it would only be increased two mills, bringing the taxes up to the same level as two years ago, when a reduction was made. Also to be considered was the fact that new buildings in town would be added to the assessment roll.

Average revenue for the past three years had been $38,700; average expenditure for the same period $34,900, leaving an annual surplus of $3,800. This year at the end of August the board had to its credit $37,000, as a result of tax collections during July and August. This would be reduced by December 31 to $28,000, through salaries and operating costs. Last December the board had $29,000 to its credit.

The new school would effect a saving of 50% in heating costs, rental of K. P. Hall and maintenance and repairs to the small buildings now in use. Tenders will be called for its erection, and in this connection he favored the contract being given to local contractors, provided prices were fair. He felt that it would increase civic pride if the new building was financed and erected by local capital and local labor.

In discussion which followed, comments were made by various ratepayers. W. Lees asked if provision would be made for further increase in population. He was assured it would.

Robert Morris, president of Coleman Miners Association, asked if a fair wage clause would be inserted in the contract, as he wanted to guard against "scab" wages being paid. W. White asked if the loan would be retired by an increase in the mill rate. The chairman replied that it was the intention of the board to see that fair wages were paid, though he could not at the moment determine what would be a just wage. That would be kept in mind. In regard to retiring of loan, he stated the financial position of the board would not be jeopardized, and if an increase was necessary, it would not exceed the rate of two years ago.

W. H. Haysom moved that the proposal be endorsed by the meeting, and it was seconded by A. M. Morrison, both complimenting the chairman on his clear-cut report and explanation of the board's deliberations. H. C. McBurney also complimented the board on having a surplus and not making any noise about it. It was a pleasant surprise. Following the close of the meeting, ratepayers were given an opportunity to inspect the plans. All were agreed it was a forward step, and not a dissenting voice was raised against the board's recommendation. It is expected that construction will be commenced at an early date, with the likelihood of having the building ready for occupancy early in the new year.

D. J. MacNeil Returns

Donald J. MacNeil, well known as the Liberal candidate for Rocky Mountain in the provincial election of 1935, recently returned from Timmins, Ont., where he had been engaged in geological and exploratory work for West Canadian Collieries Limited. Don is still keenly interested in the political situation in Alberta, and several of his friends have urged him to keep the flag of Liberalism to the fore, believing that it is the sanest policy for the province. Prior to going to Timmins, he was at Kelowna on similar work for eight months.

Mr. Makin of Hillcrest stated he had been a First Aider for 40 years, and was proud of having been able to save a life, when working in Nova Scotia mines. The man was bleeding so badly he would have quickly died had it not been for First Aid treatment, and he was glad to say that he is still living.

St. Alban's Church Has Heavy Deficit

Lack of Contributions by Many C. of E. Members Causes Financial Difficulties - Expenses Not Being Met.

At a vestry meeting on Tuesday evening, it was disclosed that of the 60 families on the roll of the church, about half of them are contributing nothing towards it, despite the fact that most of them are financially able to give something. This has caused steep and assessment funds to fall in arrears, and has prevented any improvements being made to the church or rectory, which are deteriorating rapidly.

The secretary of the vestry has sent out reminders to all members of the need for support, and another letter is being sent this week giving the financial standing, and asking that as liberal response as possible be made to the harvest festival appeal. The harvest service is to be held on Sunday evening at 7 p.m.

It is a noticeable fact, states the rector, that though employment has been steadier during the past two years, church support has grown less than when people were not earning as much as at present.

Mrs. Barlow of Drumheller was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barringham over the week-end. Mrs. Barlow and Mrs. Barringham are cousins and were former neighbors at Springfield, Nova Scotia.

Salvation Army Harvest Appeal

Lieutenants Fitch and Frayn are making their annual canvas for the above fund. In the Pass towns their objective is $175, and they ask a little assistance from everyone who is friendly disposed towards the Army and its world-wide work of saving souls, and other humanitarian services. It makes an universal appeal, regardless of denomination, class, creed or color. The local officers solicit your support and co-operation.

Coleman Cafe Has Fine Improvements

Interior Re-Decorated and Comfortable Booths Built Adding to Comfort and Convenience.

Coleman Cafe under the management of Ben Chow has always endeavored to give splendid service to its large number of customers, and the latest improvements have given a very smart appearance to the interior in keeping with the progressive spirit of this establishment, and which compares favorably with restaurants in larger cities.

The old curtained booths have been replaced by newly constructed woodwork partitions painted and trimmed in modern style, giving a most inviting appearance. A mirrored panel at the entrance to the booths meets the eye of patrons and gives an added touch of smartness.

The carpenter work and the painting and decorating was done entirely by local experts, who have made a very good job, for which the Coleman Cafe and those who did the work are to be commended.

Carnival Was Enjoyed By All

Elks Child Welfare Fund Benefits and Rink Co. Gets Share of Profits for Repairs to Rink.

The carnival on Saturday and Monday provided holiday entertainment for people of the Pass towns, who turned out in good support of the Elks and the Crystal Rink Co., so that it is expected there will be a nice profit netted for the Elks kiddies fund and the rink's share of the profits will be used for repairs.

Interest each night was climaxed on the draw for the major prizes. On Saturday night Mrs. J. Smith won the fine Chesterfield suite, and on Monday evening the five-piece handsome bedroom suite was won by H. T. Halliwell. Needless to state, the prize winners were delighted with their good luck.

Charlie Hutt of the Hutt Importing Co., Calgary, assisted the local carnival managers, H. C. McBurney and W. L. Rippon, and they in turn were assisted by many willing members of the Elks Lodge and friends. The young people enjoyed the jitney dances and the carnival furnished pleasure to young and old.

Large-Chappell Wedding at Blairmore

One of the prettiest Blairmore weddings in recent years was held Monday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chappell, when their younger daughter, Gertrude Doreen, was united in marriage to Robert Richard Lange, second son of Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Lange, of Cranbrook, B. C.

The home was beautifully decorated throughout with a profusion of gladioli and sweet peas. (Continued on Page Eight)

Government Annuity Rates Are Increased By 15 Per Cent.

Ottawa.—An increase of 15 per cent. in rates charged for all government annuities was announced by Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of labor. This increase went into effect September 5, and will be effective until new tables of rates are adopted.

The minister issued a statement explaining the decision to advance the rates, for the time being at least. A senate committee had recommended increased rates, and actuarial experts had expressed the opinion present rates were too low.

The government, said Mr. Rogers, proposed to investigate the mortality experience of all annuitants, and for this purpose had engaged Dr. M. A. MacKenzie, of Toronto University, who would be associated with N. E. Sheppard, both fellows of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain. After their investigation a new schedule of rates would be prepared.

The minister's statement follows: The government has considered a recommendation from a committee of the senate in regard to the rates charged for annuities by the annuities branch. In view of the opinions expressed by A. D. Watson, of the department of insurance, and by other actuaries who appeared before this committee of the senate, it is understood that present annuity rates are too low.

It has been decided that an investigation is to be made into the mortality experience of all government annuitants. As soon as possible a new table of rates is to be prepared in accordance with this experience and based upon a rate of interest not in excess of three and one-half per cent.

From this date, and until new tables are adopted, an increase of 15 per cent. in the rates for all government annuities has been decided upon.

Of course, no change that is now made or that may subsequently be made as the result of this or any subsequent investigation will have any effect upon contracts now in force. All contracts accepted by the annuities branch prior to September 5 remain and will remain unchanged.

American Flyers Make Record Flight Across The Atlantic

Langadock, South Wales.—Forced down by an exhausted fuel supply after having flown the Atlantic, Harry Richman, the crooner, and his veteran pilot, soft-spoken Dick Merrill, slept in their plane, "Lady Peace," surrounded by curious cows in a remote Welsh field.

Merrill brought the plane down safely and undamaged about 175 miles from the flyers' Croydon goal, after they became lost over Wales due to failure of their radio apparatus. They flew around for about an hour and a half, Richman said, before their supply of 1,000 gallons of gasoline gave out and they picked out the little field near this sparsely populated community.

Richman said they had landed at 3:30 p.m., British summer time (7:30 a.m. M.S.T.), making a total elapsed time of 17 hours and 53 minutes for the flight.

The flight was projected as a round-trip jaunt between London and New York, but when the weather the flyers would depart for Floyd Bennett field was undisturbed.

They flew in all about 3,300 miles. Without an accurate and official timing of their flight it could not be established whether the flyers had beaten the 10 hour and 56 mile record of Bennett, Griffin and James Mattern from Harbor Grace, Nfld., to the Irish coast four years ago. Griffin and Mattern flew from Newfoundland to Berlin in 18 hours and 40 minutes.

Explains How Price Works

Canadian Wheat Board Thinks It Has Not Been Understood

Winnipeg.—The Canadian wheat board issued a statement explaining the 1936-37 fixed price for wheat announced recently from Ottawa. The statement said:

"In some quarters the Dominion government's decision regarding the fixed price for wheat for the 1936-37 crop has been misinterpreted.

"A fixed price of 87½ cents basis No. 1 Northern wheat in store at Fort William has been approved provisionally by the Dominion government. This fixed price does not become effective unless the closing price for No. 1 Northern wheat in store at Fort William should go below 90 cents.

"The position, therefore, is that if No. 1 Northern wheat in store at Fort William should, on any day, close below 90 cents the fixed price of 87½ cents becomes effective immediately. This fixed price would then be effective for the balance of the crop year, and irrespective of subsequent fluctuations in the open market price, the grower could deliver wheat to the board.

"It is clear therefore that producers have an absolute stop-loss at 87½ cents. Producers who believe that higher prices for wheat are warranted can hold their wheat with the assurance that under no circumstances will they have to accept a lesser price than this for No. 1 Northern."

Western Man Recommended For Radio Commission Board

Montreal.—In a report from its Ottawa correspondent, The Gazette says Leonard Brockington, prominent Winnipeg lawyer and former corporation counsel of Calgary, is being considered for the position of chairman or assistant chairman of the new national radio board.

Mr. Brockington's appointment as chairman would, the paper says, remove cause for the present division of opinion in ministerial circles between those favoring Major Gladstone Murray of British Broadcasting Company, and Mr. Brophy of the National Broadcasting Company and formerly of the Marconi Company in Montreal.

A British Heritage

Must Pass Driver's Test

Car Owner For 39 Years, London Motorist Must Comply With The Law

London.—Sir Walter Windham, pioneer motorist and a car owner for 39 years, has been ordered by Marylebone police court to pass a driver's test. Until the test is passed Sir Walter must exhibit the sign "L" (Learner) on his car fore and aft.

As the king's foreign service messenger, Sir Walter was the first man to drive into Whitehall court with foreign despatches. It was stated in court that he had never had an accident.

But the Marylebone police magistrate disqualified him for a month, fined him £3 (£15) including costs on a charge of driving dangerously and ordered him to take a driving test before he drove again. The magistrate said it was obvious that Sir Walter's eyes and ears were not what they once were.

Sends Congratulations

King Edward Pleased With Performance Of White Star Liner Queen Mary

London.—The Cunard-White Star line announced that its president, Sir Percy Bates, had received two telegrams from King Edward congratulating the line on the Queen Mary's record-breaking westward and eastward Atlantic crossings.

The first was received immediately after the king had been apprised the liner had made the fastest westward run on record. The second message was sent when the Queen Mary passed Bishop's Rock in three minutes under four days to set a new low mark for the voyage in either direction.

Sir Percy answered with wires of thanks and ordered the king's messages posted on the officers' and crew's bulletin boards on the Queen Mary.

The Straight Highway

First Step In The Direction Of Making Motoring Safe

Charlottetown.—The straight highway was the first step in the direction of safety first, A. A. Smith, chief engineer of the Ontario department of highways, said in a paper read before 200 delegates at the 22nd annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association.

Public works officials from all the provinces, motor vehicle officers and automobile association officials attended the three-day convention, general theme of which was improvement in Canada's highways.

Arthur Dixon, deputy minister of public works, British Columbia, was among those who addressed the delegates.

Mrs. F. G. Atkinson

Unconditional release of Mrs. F. G. Atkinson, wife of a Minneapolis business executive, who was sentenced to one year in a Polish prison for alleged violation of custom regulations regarding possession of foreign currency, was released at Warsaw following protests by representatives of the U.S. Department of State. Forced to halt near the border because of tire trouble, Mrs. Atkinson was arrested when she crossed into Germany for aid, and forgot to declare a letter of credit in her possession upon returning across the Polish border.

New Zealand Advocates Creation Of Force For League

Geneva.—New Zealand, suggesting League of Nations reform, presented a memorandum advocating the creation of an international land, sea and air force to be placed at the disposition of the league to combat war-makers.

National plebiscites were suggested to approve the contribution of armed forces to the league. Separation of the league covenant from post-war treaties also was urged. Disarmament and systematic application of the anti-war measures already included in the covenant are the best assurances of peace. Foreign Minister Hailan Kohrt, of Norway, said in a communication replying to Geneva's request for discussion of proposed reforms.

Coal Probe Evidence

Ottawa.—Dr. H. M. Tory announced the sessions of the royal commission on anthracite coal would not be resumed in Montreal on Tuesday, Sept. 8, as previously announced. Careful study is being made in Ottawa of the mass of evidence and documents already received by the commission at Montreal, Quebec and Toronto. The final hearings of the probe will take place towards the end of September on dates to be announced later.

HOPES TO SECURE WORLD'S ENDURANCE RECORD

A pioneer in the Canadian field of building powered model aeroplanes, Foster Stone, of Moose Jaw, Sask., was the first youth in Canada to build a model plane powered with a small engine. Some of his models will attain a speed of 40 miles an hour and an altitude of 2,500 feet. Foster hopes to capture the world's endurance record in the near future. At present it is held by an enthusiast in the United States.

Submarine Armada

Japan Serves Notice Regarding Undersize Warships

London.—Japan served notice to the world that she will maintain at full force her mighty submarine armada.

Japan's decision, to retain submarines originally scheduled for destruction under the 1930 London naval treaty, was made known in a formal note to Great Britain.

The note, handed to the foreign office, signified Japan would keep in service, with 52,700 tons allowed, an additional 1,598 tons of submarine craft, the tonnage scheduled for scrapping before expiration of the London treaty, Jan. 1, 1937.

This would give Japan a strength in undersize warships one-third greater than that of either Great Britain or the United States.

The 1930 treaty provided the three nations should limit their submarine force to 52,700 tons each. To accomplish this, the treaty signatories would have to resort to the scrap heap before the end of the year.

Presumably, the Japanese availed themselves of the London treaty's escalator clause to permit retention of the submarines. The escalator clause provides any party to the treaty may increase naval strength in any category if it feels national security is jeopardized.

Canadian Hospitality

Lord Mayor Of London Delighted With Visit To Dominion

Quebec.—Describing himself "almost killed with Canadian hospitality," Sir Percy Vincent, London's jovial lord mayor, bade farewell to Canada.

Sir Percy, who came to the Dominion to attend the golden jubilee celebrations at Vancouver, expressed "vincere and hearty thanks" to all Canada, as he sailed for home on the liner Empress of Australia.

"We have been almost killed with Canadian hospitality," said the lord mayor as he posed for photographers with Lady Vincent and their retinue. "We are very tired but very happy. The kindness of Canadians everywhere has been remarkable and we are going home thoroughly delighted with our very strenuous visit."

Departure of Sir Percy's party was in sharp contrast to the colorful arrival three weeks ago. Gone were the robes of velvet and ermine; the cockade hats the brilliant uniforms, and even the bulky make symbol of the lord mayor's authority, was hidden in a green baize sack.

Winnipeg.—A. Eschpov, chief of the state plant breeding fund of the Soviet People's Commissariat of Agriculture, Moscow, is here to study Canadian methods of wheat breeding and the production of rust resistant varieties of grain. He will visit Saskatoon and Edmonton also.

Viscount Elibank Voices an Admonition To Canadian People

Vancouver.—Viscount Elibank, president of the British central chamber of commerce, voiced an admonition to Canadians to make up their minds whether or not they were to remain in the British empire or out of it.

Speaking of the possibility of war involving Great Britain, Viscount Elibank said:

"If London is vulnerable today then, to a lesser degree, other cities of the empire are vulnerable.

"We have got to make up our minds whether we are going to stay in the empire or out of it—there is no shirking that question. We must make up our minds now, once and for all, if, to us, the empire is worth having and worth saving."

The viscount did not reply directly to Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie's reference to him as a "pernigrating Imperialist." After mentioning defence measures by other parts of the empire, he said: "I do not propose to speak to Canada for fear I hurt someone's susceptibilities."

Lord Elibank said that in Australia and South Africa extensive, vigorous preparations were being Calgary.—Canada, like Great Britain, must have a militia, not too large but fully equipped and perfectly trained, said Baron Tweedsmuir, governor-general of Canada, speaking to members of the Alberta Military Institute at a luncheon here.

"I take my hat off to the Canadian militia," said His Excellency. "Their patriotic spirit and efficiency gives me a feeling of greater security concerning this land of ours."

The governor-general declared no civilized country could afford to be without a defence policy, and a poorly equipped militia. The Dominion must have a militia, not too large but fully equipped and perfectly trained.

"The last war did not lead to perpetual peace as had been anticipated," he added, "and there was still a long way to travel to reach that goal. No country could afford to be without a defence policy."

He referred to the "stupendous achievements" made by Canadians "as the spearhead of the British army" in the Great War.

Substitutes On Display

Germany Showing Synthetic Materials At Leipzig Autumn Fair

Leipzig, Germany.—The third reich's redoubled efforts to put Germany's foreign trade back on its feet were reflected in the annual Leipzig autumn fair.

At Leipzig are first shown the latest achievements of German scientists in the way of "ersatz," or substitute materials for those that cannot be imported now in view of foreign exchange considerations. Among these are various synthetic resins, materials, and the recently-invented rubber substitute, "Buna."

A new artificial marble is shown in which the veining effect is produced by photo-mechanical means on glass. By a similar process ordinary leather is made to assume the appearance of reptile skin.

It is asserted the most experienced eye cannot detect the difference between the substitute and the real expensive article.

Cleaning Up Slum Districts

Halifax.—Great Britain would be rid of slum districts within five years, declared Sir Raymond Unwin, a member of the British government's advisory committee on housing and planning, who with Lady Unwin arrived here on the steamship Newfoundland from Liverpool. A program was at present being executed to provide an additional 3,000,000 homes.

made for defence. Air strength was being given special attention." In other dominions the matter was being given serious consideration, he said.

Great Britain, to retain its place in the fore of nations, must rearm intensively and be prepared for the worst, the viscount said.

Lord Elibank said it would be "an economic shame and great folly" if the "red route" to the Antipodes is ever broken. "The Red Route" refers to the all-British route, British countries being colored red on the map.

"In the house of lords and commons we have been impressing on our government that everything should be done, by subsidies or other means, to make possible the maintenance of this route in the face of present conditions."

"It would urge upon all of you, whatever your governments, whether they be in Canada, Great Britain, Australia or New Zealand—I speak not as a politician—the necessity of arranging to preserve for the British empire this vital part of the red route."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

"THE people of this country are the ones who will keep it ahead in the March of Progress—not our politicians."

"WHAT most cities need are fewer pessimists and a greater number of citizens with more faith in the future."

WHAT makes a town a good centre? Mainly the energy and enterprise of the people living in it. There is no golden rule to success, except that of application to one's daily task and properly directed energy. The greatest help is self-help. In every community there are some who try and lead. They willingly accept the responsibilities of public office, on town councils, school boards, church boards and other organizations that all go to make up worth-while community life. And oft-times one realizes that their efforts are retarded by the indifference of others who regard a community merely as a place in which they earn a living, and who do nothing except pay that which they are compelled to in the way of taxes. These are often paid grudgingly. In every centre of population, there are certain advantages which accrue from groups of people living together.
Improvements are made through collective effort, and the sloggers as well as the energetic enjoy the advantages and privileges which the initiative the ambitious portion of the community have made possible.

MANY instances might be recorded of people whom we all know, who have had equal opportunities. Two men, for instance, 30 years ago, may have started out with the same wages, steady employment, the same privileges. One brings up his family, provides a comfortable home and contributes his full share towards the various activities that go to make a healthy and enterprising community. Another may at the end of the 30 years, have nothing and live from hand to mouth, and were employment to cease, he would have to go on relief. Yet he would possibly claim that the world owed him a living.

THAT is why public opinion turns some searching glances on the relief system. In latter years, the indolent and those lacking ambition have found refuge in securing relief.
The thrifty people have to pay for it. They do not object to being taxed for deserving indigents, for it is always recognized that the poor we will always have with us. But many instances could be related of men who have openly bragged that they did not have to work, and even boasted that they could take railway trips and holidays and they didn't have to travel by side-door pullmans either. They rode on cushion seats. The Social Crediters boast that more people signed the "covenants" than voted for Premier Aberhart.
Why? Because they believed they were going to get something for nothing. As long as people are led to believe that the State can support them, the more will it encourage them to lessen their efforts which stern necessity would compel them to use in order to survive. The survival of the fittest is one of Nature's fundamental laws, and rightly so.
Too much of this "brother's keeper stuff" would develop a soft spineless race which eventually would be unable to earn its own living.

WE TURN from serious things to hilarious. Being invited to a smoker at Bellevue Inn, where prizes were presented to the teams who that day had engaged in First Aid competitions, we were prepared for a good lively time, knowing from previous experience that such occasions are full of pep and other things. We were not disappointed.
Some of the songs were good, others were bad, and some were in the "no class" category. But like the pianist in a western saloon who narrowly escaped being shot, but for someone with a tender heart intervening, they were all doing their best, consequently all received a great measure of applause; even a gentleman who possessed a fine baritone voice with clarion tones, who sang a ditty about the "Spotted Fly," though we have since been wondering why so many words were needed over and over again to sing of this particular spotted fly.

THE point we really started out to impress on our large circle of readers was the commendable spirit of young men and their trainers who engage in First Aid work. There is no glory, no pay, no applause from the crowd, yet by their knowledge they have been and will in future be called on to save lives, for First Aid knowledge has saved many a life pending the arrival of a doctor. The deeds they perform, they receive no meritorious medals for, but they do receive the heartfelt appreciation of their fellows in distress and the gratitude of people who realize the spirit of sacrifice exemplified in First Aiders.

Letter From Mrs. Borden

Mrs. Borden writes from Bristol, Eng., where the family has been spending summer holidays, stating that Dr. Borden is working at Bristol hospitals and is very much impressed by some of the new methods in use there. She states also that they are enjoying country life, and are living quite close to salt water bathing. The summer season has been very rainy, but was improving at time of writing. "We certainly appreciate getting the Coleman news every week through The Journal, and look forward eagerly to the Canadian mail days," concludes the letter, with best wishes to Coleman friends. They will be returning to London and expect to leave for Canada in December.

Salvation Army Notes

The local officers are preparing another play to be staged in the month of October. Watch for details.

Hillcrest Advanced to Provincial Finals

Hillcrest, Sept. 6--Hopes of a provincial championship coming to rest in Hillcrest rose higher here to-day. A scrappy base stealing junior outfit to-day reached the provincial finals turning back Queenstown in two straight games. The classiest gang of ball tossers ever developed in Hillcrest, the locals continued to thunder along the victory path backing up brilliant hurling, by equally fine support afield and at the plate.

Baffled by the curves of young Johnny Morris, Queenstown were no match for the hard hitting locals, losing out by a 9-5 score in eight innings Saturday. On Sunday, Ed Seaman, ace stand beside the drum when it did relief ball and wielded the hickory effectively to personally lead his team to a 9-7 victory in the afternoon encounter.

The evening tilt, an exhibition affair, was also won by Hillcrest 8-4. Marcolin of the locals hit a home run with one on in the eighth.

Hillcrest now meets a strong Nacmine team in the finals, and coach Delini feels certain that if his pitching staff is up to form, Hillcrest will give Nacmine the fight of its life.

A Queer Feeling!

The editor won a prize at the carnival, getting the thrill that comes but once in a lifetime. The way it happened was this. We walked over to the booth late in the evening, and purchased a ticket. A few minutes before midnight, Frank Barringham, one of the Elks in charge of the booth, requested "ye ed" to stand beside the drum when it was shuffled and rolled and the ticket drawn. Being rather self-conscious of standing before so many curious and eager faces, we politely declined, but Frank wouldn't take no for an answer, so that we reluctantly accepted. He insisted that we should stand up where all could see and be seen. A little girl, Freda Sygattuk, was picked at random from the crowd around the booth, and amid the suspense always attendant on occasions such as these, drew very carefully one ticket. The officials looked at it, blinked their eyes a second to make sure they weren't seeing things, and then one exclaimed, "Why, it's his up there!"

We were too astonished to even try to say "Thanks!" One thing that is very noticeable is that though all who purchase tickets naturally hope to win, they in a way share the pleasure of the winner in extending their congratulations. One feels that if he could share the prize the same as a wedding cake, then he would distribute it to all and sundry.

Had Struggle With Grizzly

Mountain Climbers in Rockies Attacked By Mother Bear

The story of a struggle with an enraged mother grizzly bear protecting her cub in Interior British Columbia was related by Mr. and Mrs. Don Munday, Alpinists who returned to Vancouver from an exploration trip in the Coast Range.

As they completed a hazardous passage through a 12-foot chert in Bearpaw canyon, Mount Silverthorne, the Munday's returned, they looked down on a grizzly cub standing apparently alone.

Discarding their ice-axes, they focused their gaze on the cub but before they could take a picture the roar of the mother grizzly distracted their attention.

She was standing on the same ledge as they, 30 feet away.

Unarmed, the Munday's began to yell, but the mother bear started her advance. About a yard away she swerved off but came back a moment later more fiercely than ever.

Finally Mrs. Munday succeeded in recovering one of the axes and, as the bear made a rush at Mr. Munday, causing him to trip, she rushed at the bear with up-raised axe and drove it off.

No Rent Paid For Six-Flat Building in Chicago

For at least 10 years, 61-year-old William Hyde told Judge McCarthy, none of the tenants in the six-flat building in Chicago where he lived paid any rent—because nobody knew who owned it.

But Mrs. Delphina Lance charged Hyde posed as the owner and tried to have her evicted for non-payment of rent.

When Hyde admitted he was not the owner and didn't know who was, Judge McCarthy fined him $100 and ordered an investigation of the mystery building.

Interesting Record Compiled Of Names On School Wall

A. C. Baker, school clerk of famous Etton since 1909, who has arranged for hundreds of boys to be fogged on the birching block, has retired on pension.

"At his office just off school yard he said many of the boys who have been fogged in his time are now famous, and some occupy prominent positions in the government."

"It was one of my duties," he explained, "to see that boys retired to the headmaster for a fogging when they had been awarded this punishment."

Years ago Mr. Baker began the tremendous task of making a record of all the names of boys carved on the walls of upper school and the adjoining staircases.

This work he has at last finished, and he has presented a bound volume containing 18,000 names to the headmaster, Claude Elliott, an another copy to the school library. Some of the names go back to the 16th century.

"It was a most fascinating task," said Mr. Baker. "I found the names of Gladstone, Shelley and Peel, and in more recent times those of the Duke of Gloucester, King Leopold of the Belgians, the ex-king of Siam, Anthony Eden, and G. O. Allen, the cricketer."

"I found more Smiths than any other name—they total 145. The Campbells come next with 81; then are the Scotts 62, the Wilsons 54, and the Hamiltons 53. The 29 Gossings all have their names cut together in one group."

"Every letter in the alphabet is represented, even Z with a solitary entry."

"This carving of names began shortly after the foundation of the college by Henry VI, and it became such a common practice that a few years ago the authorities officially recognized it."

"Nowadays boys who wish to have their names carved on leaving Etton pay a fee of 10s. ($250) to have the work carried out by skilled craftsmen."

The headmaster, making a presentation to Mr. Baker on behalf of the staff, said that Ettonians all over the world would learn with regret that the school clerk was retiring.

Became Great Novelist

Peasant Girl Once Forbidden To Learn To Read Or Write

Grazia Deledda, who died in Rome at the age of 61, was a peasant girl who became a prosperous novelist although her parents forbade her to learn to read and write. Signora Deledda won the 1926 Nobel Prize for literature with her novel, "La Paga in Egitto" (The Flight Into Egypt).

Born in Sardinia, the girl was destined for a life in the fields. However, at the age of eight, she found a book. Anxious to know its contents, she went secretly to the home of the village schoolmistress and learned to read.

Four years later she sent a composition to a Rome newspaper and received 50 lire. Her parents, surprised that she could make money by writing, went about educating her. By her eighteenth birthday she had written and published a novel.

She was almost unknown, however, outside her own country when she won the Nobel Prize nine years ago. Years before, however, she had had a sudden popularity in America through the support of William Dean Howells, who said she was a model for American novelists.

She wrote fifty novels. She was one of the "regionalists" and most of her work was about her native Sardinia. The winning of the Nobel Prize gained her a place in the Academy of Immortals which Mussolini created in 1926.

A man received notice to vacate from his landlord. Believing it could not be enforced, he replied immediately:

"Dear sir, 'I remain,

Was Once Zulu Queen

Aged Woman Now Lives in Rhodesia On Small Pension

Wizened, bent and poorly clad, but not without traces of royal dignity, a one-time queen has been listening to a native missionary conference at Bulawayo in Southern Rhodesia. Her name is Macbeose, once one of the superior wives, or queens, of Lobengula, last King of the Matabele.

A little over 40 years ago she was the slightest whim of Queen Macbeose was law to whole regiments of plumed warriors. Today, with a middle-aged daughter, she lives on a small pension granted by the Rhodesian Government.

Behind her faded but imperious old eyes and deeply furrowed face are memories that would make a score of books.

It was to Queen Macbeose's father, Gungunyana, that Dr. Jameson made his famous journey in 1891 through forest and swamps to secure a concession over diamonds. To obtain a seaboard for what is now Southern Rhodesia, Dr. Jameson obtained the concession and permanently undermined his health in so doing, but the Imperial Government turned it down and today Rhodesia remains an island State while the Portuguese rule over Gazarland.

The days of native wars, raids for women and cattle, the ritual execution of wizards, and the barbaric splendour of the last great Bantu warrior-king, died with Macbeose's husband. Today her chief interest is the spread of Christianity among the black races who were once the subjects of Lobengula—the Terrible in War.

Working To Music

English Motor Company Finds It Creates Cheerful Atmosphere

Music has many uses outside of the field of amusement and entertainment. It has been said that music has the power to soothe the savage beast; that blasts from a trumpet of minor chords will cause a ferocious lion of turn tall; that music at the proper tempo will induce pupils in school to do nearer writing. The Standard Motor Co., Limited, Canley, Coventry, England, one of the largest automobile manufacturers in that country, has found that the broadcasting of music in part of their factory has had a beneficial effect on the spirit of the workers, has created a cheerful atmosphere, and has caused no deterioration in efficiency and careful workmanship.—Oshawa Times.

International Trade

Australian Publisher Believes It Best Prevention Of War

The best prevention of war, Sir Keith Murdoch said in an interview at Montreal, would be a loosening of trade barriers and a general move to make international trade more easily possible. The Australian publisher, on his way home after a trip through Spain, France, Germany and England, said "some of the best brains in England are working on a policy of bank credits for nations which are hard up and the freeing of certain channels of trade in the hope there will be a substantial revival of trade by this means."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 13

THE COUNCIL IN JERUSALEM

Golden text: For ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another. Galatians 5:13. Lesson: Acts 15:1-35; Galatians 2. Devotional reading: Romans 8:1-10.

Explanations And Comments

Trouble at Antioch of Syria, Acts 15:1. To the church at Antioch Paul reported "all things that God had done with them," and gave as the result of their tour that "God had opened a door of faith unto the Gentiles." The door was too widely open to suit the Jerusalem church when the news reached them. That God was no respecter of persons Peter had learned at Joppa, and the Jerusalem Church, after hearing all the circumstances, had glorified God, saying, "Then to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life." The truths, however, had been applied to only a few special cases, and the far-reaching consequences to the Church had not been foreseen. Now a crisis was reached. Certain members came from Jerusalem to Antioch and declared that unless all were circumcised according to the custom of Moses, they could not be saved, thus insisting that Gentiles must follow the law of Moses before they could become Christians. As Paul wrote to the Galatians (2:4), "They came in to put to us our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage."

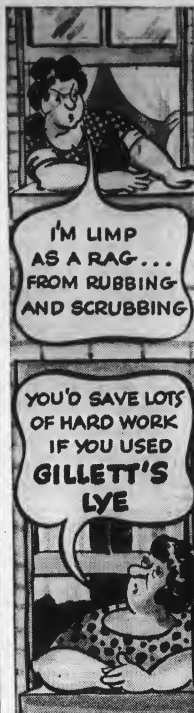

The earliest Formal Official Document of the Christian Church, Acts 15:22-29. The words of Peter and Paul and James carried the day. The whole church agreed to send two of their chief men, Judas and Silas, to Antioch with Paul to explain their decision. By these men a letter was sent which greeted the Gentiles as brethren, informed them that those from Jerusalem who had stirred up the trouble had not been acting under the authority of the church, commended Paul and Barnabas as beloved brethren who had hazarded their lives for the Lord, reported a unanimous decision, given through the guidance of the Holy Spirit, that no further burden should be placed on the Gentile Christians than the abstaining from the four things enumerated by James.

Note the tact with which the letter was written and the wisdom with which the decree was formulated. Had they declared in so many words that the rite of circumcision was abrogated, the Hebrew party in the church would have rebelled.

The Favorable Reception of the Decision, Acts 15:30-35. Knowing, as they did, the Pharisaic element in the church at Jerusalem, not to say the bigotry of many of its members, the church at Antioch must have awaited the result of the conference with considerable anxiety. And there was great rejoicing when the deputations arrived and the letter was read. The church in Jerusalem had yielded in what seemed to them an important matter, the regular mode of circumcision; and the church at Antioch readily agreed, on their part, to abstain from food offered to idols and from things strangled. There was give and take on each side.

Expected Too Much

She said dreamily to him: "Yes, I could love a poor man." He asked her: "Then why not marry me?" She dreamily continued: "But I could not love a poor man enough to have the alarm clock wake me out of pleasant dreams to get up and make his coffee and fry an egg before he went to work every morning." And he said rudely: "Who said anything about there being an egg to fry?"

World Speed Record

Made By Stream-Lined Jubilee Express in England

The stream-lined silver jubilee express of the London and Northeastern railway, running from Newcastle-on-Tyne to London, established a new speed record for British trains by reaching a maximum speed of 113 miles an hour.

The train, excluding the engine, passengers and baggage, weighed 270 tons. The figure is believed to be a world record for a streamlined passenger train.

Plant Out Of Place

A weed may be described as a plant out of place; by its unsightly appearance, its pernicious habits of growth, method of spreading by root stalks and seed, it becomes a real menace to agriculture regardless of whether it is growing on highways, by-ways, public or private property.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA GRAIG

Starr thought she had never seen anything quite so comfortable as the man-sort of place with its crimson leather chairs, bookcases with dim lights over them and low, comfortable chairs, each with its own particular light. There were scatter rugs, dim-hued and velvety and the gleam of copper or brass here and there, and—she held her breath as it took her straight back home—a painting on one wall of Egyptian gods and goddesses who stood in their stiff-bodied stoniness of dress, with geometrical hands and draped bodies making the same old mysterious signs at each other, signaling.

The man caught Starr's eyes, saw something in them he did not understand, nor did he care.

"Just a few of your pals," he said. "Thought you might like them. You might catch up a bit of chatter with them while I tell Yu'an what we'd like to eat."

Over the supper they talked, undisturbed. But it was a talk of such consequence that it was a table of scarcely touched food as they eyes held each other's in long moment of appraisal.

The man's elbows rested on the table and he leaned close. The girl's slim fingers twisted nervously in her lap as her glance flashed to where she had dropped her coat on a red leather chair. A faint color crept beneath the pallor of her cheeks, feeling him look at her the way he was looking.

It was then, after they had fenced the point of one or the other lunging for a body blow, that he made the most astounding proposition a man ever made to a girl.

He explained in his clipped voice: "There hasn't appeared any particular need for mentioning it before, but my name is Michael Fairbourne. The next in the biography confession is that I work for the Tarrance Publishing Company. One of our recent novels is 'Play-Girl.' Heard of it?"

Starr nodded. Heard of it? Who hadn't? "Play-Girl" was on everybody's lips. One of those sensational best-sellers which come once in a blue moon. Some of them come every few years, of course; others are in the 'Three Weeks' class and make a devastating disturbance of their own. But it was the consensus of opinion that "Three Weeks" was a Victorian and skimmiest sort of tome, one which ought to be on every Sunday-School library shelf compared with "Play-Girl." "Play-Girl"—a daring, risqué story of an ultra-modern woman's love—and sin. Her own unregenerate, unrepentant life-story of a life still too young really to be called a life, but—

Michael Fairbourne said curtly: "I wrote it."

Starr caught her breath incredulously. "You? You wrote it? But I thought—"

"So does everybody else," he said grimly. His face was as flushed as her own, and he appeared to be uncertain just how he wanted to continue. But he plunged on headlong. "The company I work for bathed in it as the confession story of a woman who had sinned, a true story written by the anonymous 'Play-Girl' herself. He shrugged his big shoulders and waited the space of time it took him to light a cigarette. "That's baloney, of course. I wrote the thing on an impulse, and it got away from me. Have you ever known the feeling of starting a small thing rolling, much as you've

RHEUMATISM SPREAD TO ALL HER JOINTS

Obtained Relief by Using Kruschen Salts

Here is a sad story of suffering, but it has a happy ending. "This woman was attacked by severe rheumatism which spread to all her joints. But Kruschen brought relief as she describes below:—

"I feel it my duty to tell you how Kruschen Salts brought me relief from a severe attack of rheumatism. I had rheumatism in my legs and knees, later spreading to every joint in my body. This lasted over a period of 15 weeks. I was then ordered to bed with acute rheumatism. I was recommended to try Kruschen and, after finishing the second bottle I was able to perform my normal duties." (Mrs.) J.D.

Rheumatic conditions are frequently due to an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients in these Salts assist Nature to expel the dissolved uric acid through the natural channels.

probably made a snowball when you were a kid, and then finding that it has grown widely beyond your control? Well, that's what happened to 'Play-Girl.' The last thing I ever dreamed of in the world was that it would cause such a sensation. Now the public is clamoring for the author to be revealed—a sort of 'personal appearance' command, as it were, and my publisher demands that I either simmer forward and confess myself the damn fool author of the damn fool book, or else produce an author who would be more in keeping."

Starr interrupted, not understanding what he was driving at. Her acquaintance with publishers had been with those who had published her father's tomes on archeology. It had not occurred that any person could go to the tremendous trouble of putting down on paper enough words to fill a whole book and then shrink from the acclaim of authorship.

"Well," she asked wonderingly, "why don't you admit your identity and take the fame that's coming to you? I should think it would be marvellous to be a real author."

"Who? Me?" Michael snapped, and he gave a short laugh. "Fame? Notoriety's the word! And certainly no credit to the kind of masculine brain that could evolve such truck. No I can't do it."

"Why did you write it then?" Starr wondered, but he was paying her no attention.

"I might as well make a clean breast of the whole thing while I'm about it," he said, as his jaw clamped firmly. "Truth is, there's a girl I hope to marry. Stephanie Dale. The Dales are one of the oldest, proudest families in New York,—which might not be saying a great deal, at that, except that they're among the few real old New Yorkers who still talk a great deal about dear old Uncle Great-great-and-so-on Peter Stuyvesant and make their family prayers to a wooden leg. That old hooey means a lot of them, yet, and if they ever found out that I was the author of the scandalous 'Play-Girl,' it would be all off between me and Stephanie."

Starr said, "Oh!" very softly. Those few words of his spoke volumes about the life of Michael Fairbourne. Not for nothing had he been born in the shadow of Old South Church and been reared in the rarified atmosphere that spreads over Beacon Hill. Though not for worlds would she ever have had Michael Fairbourne guess that—not now, but somehow she hated to think of him in the role of social climber. To any extent. It just didn't seem to fit.

The hard young face so near to hers was very intense. Apparently the scheme of things he had mapped out for himself meant a great deal to Starr's Broadway "Hassan." Suddenly he was talking to her as intimately as though he had known her a lifetime. Much as if it were a thought to express in words the relief that had been forced to keep to himself. He went to great lengths to explain himself to the black-eyed wraith of a girl opposite him, in a burst of almost boyish earnestness.

"You see, even if Stephanie didn't not complicate matters, and if it did not look so silly for a big lunatic like me to have got any such effusion out of his system, I still could not reveal myself without making a lot of other folks as assinine as myself. The author of 'Play-Girl' has got to be 'Play-Girl' herself. Otherwise the whole thing would be exposed as a gigantic hoax. . . . It isn't done—not any more, if you get what I mean, and know anything about the publishing business. My publishers are not looking for hoaxes. That would ruin the sale of my book, and baby! are we going strong? It would ruin them—and me, which is more to the point!"

Starr asked quietly: "And just where do I figure in this intriguing little story?"

Michael Fairbourne smiled audaciously and leaned back, watching the play of her features.

"You," he said with slow emphasis, "are going to make your debut in New York City as the notorious 'Play-Girl'—the woman who lived my story, and yes, by heaven, who wrote it, too, without a single ghost. You look as if you could have."

Starr drew a long, startled breath. For a second things went dizzy and the little flames in the fireplace were dancing a funny little devil's dance. She had a confused impression of burning gray eyes, a laughing mouth, and the spell of a man's attraction which was stronger than anything she had ever known. His crisp voice cut into her confusion:

"The first moment I heard you on the Avenue this morning crying out that you wanted to play, I knew you were the one for the job. I was more certain of it when you clicked on the keys of your typewriter and I disappeared before I got a second sight of you."

This Spider Can Sell

Owner Claims It Weaves Whole Sentences Into Verse

If you don't believe that Renfrew, the "spelling spider" of Harrison Avenue, Detroit, is spinning such tales as "Mamie, you'll never know how I fell," in his white cotton web, don't tell the neighbors of Mrs. John Burns, whose iris bed is Renfrew's home.

For a block around, his admirers tell of Renfrew's yarns—words and whole sentences gauzy in spider-web letters a quarter of an inch high. Sometimes letters are left out, and on other occasions there are too many, they admit, but they claim it's pretty good writing for a spider. Mrs. Burns says she named him (or her) from the first word she saw spelled out. That was several days before the message to "Mamie," which she says has been his most ambitious literary effort to date.

When Renfrew completes a web, he tears it up and begins again. A skeptical reporter who visited Mrs. Burns found nothing but a shred of web which Albert Rimmel, self-appointed custodian of Renfrew, said had been the upshot of the letter "X" in "T.W.C.A." 2187

Visited Dying Soldier

New Story Proves King Kindness Of King Edward

The dedication by King Edward VIII of Canada's memorial to her dead at Vimy has inspired the publication of anecdotes of His Majesty's last visit there as Prince of Wales. One, hitherto unrecorded, runs as follows:

Some years after the war an ex-soldier was dying, friendless, in a hospital. His only visitor was a well-known padre. As death drew near the man expressed a desire to see the King—then Prince of Wales—whom he had known in France.

The padre understood and dashed to York House, only to be told that the Prince had retired for the night. Evidently the Prince heard and recognized the caller's voice, for a few minutes later, clad in pajamas and dressing gown, he came down stairs and the visitor explained his mission.

"I remember the man," replied the Prince, "and I must see him. I am tired, but as he is so ill we had better go at once. Tomorrow may be too late."

"Tiptoeing along the ward," says the Ypres Times, which recalls the story, "the Prince went straight to the man's bedside. He took the man's hand and remained thus for some time."

"The man was too far gone to speak, but he opened his eyes and gave a smile of recognition and gratitude. Then he lapsed into a state of coma. . . . That afternoon he died."

Find Undersea Channel

American Coast Guards Have Discovered Old River Bed

Tentative evidence that the Mississippi River once flowed far to the south, through land that since has fallen into the Gulf of Mexico, has been found.

Existence of an undersea channel, such as a river bed, was discovered by soundings from the U.S. Geodetic Survey ship Hydrographer. After taking on supplies at New Orleans, the Hydrographer returned to the Gulf to study the phenomenon.

Recordings of coast guard experts told of a depression, one to two fathoms in depth, running east and west and fifteen miles south of Terrebonne Bay and Timbalier Island. It is not far from the 10-fathom limit off the coast and is expected to extend beyond this point.

The course of the channel seemed to be in the same direction as the present Mississippi Valley further to the east, and further study is expected definitely to settle a theory that geologists long have held. Their idea is that the rich Mississippi Valley country originally extended far south and that for hundreds of years the land has been sinking into the Gulf.

Soundings of the Hydrographer are taken at the rate of four a second. The ship works north and south over a limited area. Similar geodetic surveying is being carried on along the entire American coastline.

Perfect Driver Rare

Tests Show Most Of Them Have Some Weakness

Dr. Silva, head of the traffic research department of Harvard University, has tested a large number of drivers, and it is his opinion that the auto driver who clicks on the phases of the tests is exceptional, because nearly everyone has some driving weakness of which he is unaware. So it isn't always safe to depend upon your judgment. A generous share of courtesy is a good thing to observe.—Chatham News.

Second To Sign Book

Sir Edward Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has become a freeman of Vancouver and an honorary life member of the Vancouver board of trade. Sir Edward entered his vigorous, perpendicular signature in Vancouver's "Book of Freedoms" directly below that of Sir Percy Vincent, lord mayor of London, first to sign the book.

Sodium Sulphate Output

Excellent progress has been made in the sodium sulphate industry in Saskatchewan during the past few years. Plants in operation in the province are capable of producing over 600 tons of dried salt per day. The output in 1935 amounted to 44,800 tons value at $343,700.

Little Helps For This Week

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee. Isaiah 26:3.

What comforts, Lord, to those are given, Who seek in Thee their home and heaven. And in Thy peace are amply blest.

God is a tranquil being and abides in a tranquillity. So must your spirit become a tranquil pool where in the serene light of God can be mirrored. Therefore shun all that is disquieting, within and without. Nothing in the whole world is worth the loss of your peace. Endeavor to obtain a quiet and peaceful spirit, for God is full of peace and happiness. Avoid all anxious care and vexation which darkens your soul and renders you unfit for the friendship of God. If you perceive these feelings rising, turn away from them.

Most "B" BATTERIES look very much alike on the outside. But it isn't what a battery looks like that counts—but what it does. Underneath the jacket of some brands of batteries, are small round cells. The heart of a Layerbilt is a series of tightly packed layers. In the old-fashioned round-cell type, note the waste space in the "Air Pockets" around the cells, but the Layerbilt is all battery—solid layers containing 25% more power-making materials than a round-cell battery of the same size.

And because the exclusive construction uses up the maximum of these materials, Layerbilt gives 40% more power. Layerbilt costs a little more at first—but saves you plenty in the end. Of all "B" batteries on the market, Layerbilt gives you "More Hours per Dollar"—longer life, trouble-free service.

This year—Layerbilt comes to you with an extra improvement—the "plug-in" which eliminates all terminal posts and gives you only one connection for each "B" battery.

The fish, states Mr. Smith, used up the 25 yards of line and snapped the rod out of his hand, causing him to plunge into the water after it. The fireplace, banked with evergreen, fern and autumn leaves, with white wedding bells overhanging, made a delightful setting for the wedding ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered in to the strains of the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. She was charming in a floorlength gown of white spider web silk lace over taffeta, cut on princess lines, with an elbow length cape of the same material edged with pleated silk net. A coronet of white rosebuds and white sandala completed her ensemble, with which she carried a shower bouquet of Johanna Hill and Talisman roses.

Miss Irene Chappell, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and was becomingly attired in a floor length gown of pale green silk net over taffeta and carried a sheaf of cream-centered gladioli tied with silver streamers. Silver sandals and a bandeau of coral rosebuds and silver ribbon completed her ensemble.

The groom, who is a graduate in Pharmacy of the University of Alberta, was supported by his brother, Dr. J. M. Large, of Kelowna, B. C.

Rev. A. E. Larke, of the Blaimore United church, officiated, and Miss Madeleine Chardon played the wedding music. During the signing of the register Mrs. Gordon Steeves beautifully rendered "O Promise Me."

Following the ceremony a delightful wedding breakfast was served. The table was centered with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake in a bed of smilax, surrounded by pale pink tapers in silver sconces and shaded pink sweet peas in silver vases. Miss Alma McKay, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. John Angus MacDonald presided, assisted by Misses Marion MacDonald, Ina Standefer, and Ruby Meers.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. A. E. Larke, and responded to by the bridegroom. Mr. Gordon Steeves proposed a toast to the bridesmaid and Dr. J. M. Large also replied.

For travelling the bride chose a Guardsman blue three-piece ensemble with touches of scarlet and navy accessories. The happy couple left for Spokane by way of Logan Pass, and upon their return they will take up residence in Blaimore where they have a host of friends. The bride, having lived here all her life, is a popular member of the younger set and of musical circles.

The following is a list of those present: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chappell, Miss Irene Chappell, Albert Chappell, Clifford Chappell, Dr. and Mrs. H. L. Large and Fred Large, Cranbrook; Dr. J. M.
